OWNEY DAY

Owney Day was celebrated on July 14, 2018. While not as well attended as in previous years, those visitors who did come had an excellent day at the Museum. On board the Rail Yard Local, patrons heard the story of Owney as told by Marty Bishop, while the train made its way to the Railway Post Office car. Passengers detrained there and got a tour of the car by Secretary Steve Gould. Also, thanks to the efforts of Tom McCullough, visitors could stop at the United States Postal Service table, purchase a stamp, and get a special Owney pictorial postmark cancel for the day's event on an envelope supplied by the Museum and included in the price of admission. The balance of the Owney story was told as the train returned to the point of origin on Track 24. These unique envelopes are on sale in the Gift Shop for $5.

TONAWANDA VALLEY GETS LETTERING

The final piece of the restoration of the 1928 observation/lounge/sleeping car "Tonawanda Valley", that once graced the rear of the famed New York Central train, 20th Century Limited, has been completed with the addition of yellow stenciled lettering of "PULLMAN" and the car's name on both sides of the car. Project Manager Art Slothower, who has single-handedly performed the lion's share of the restoration completed the stenciling in mid-July. (Bill Britt, the original Project Manager, passed away shortly after the work had begun). Art also some picked up some original furniture from the car's previous owner for placement in the lounge. To protect the furniture from the sun, protective film was installed on the windows. The car will be open for tours August 4 & 5th during the 12th annual Danbury Railway Days. Well done, Art!

A GOOD IDEA AT THE TIME?

There was an interesting item in the November 1955 issue of Railway Progress. Apparently, the New Haven Railroad, under the guidance of President Patrick McGinnis, thought a good way to lower operating costs was to have crewless trains. Automation had already been tested successfully in France and the New Haven was the first railroad in the United States to test the concept. The idea was to have the test train run from New Rochelle to New Haven with the train controlled by a truck on highway. Since I-95 was still several years from being completed, the road had to have been U.S. Route 1. Full implementation of the plan would have been a major step backwards as Connecticut roads became crowded with cars.

The Library has a number of issues of Railway Progress, all with short interesting articles. They are available for reading by appointment with the Library.

NYC &HRR Wooden Caboose #19322
2017 Restoration Update

By Gerry Herrmann, Project Leader. Photos by Stan Madyda

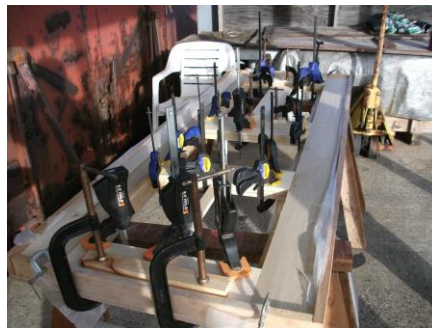

Beginning in 2017, we ordered special milled wood to build two entrance doors for sides A and B on the caboose as this was necessary as the doors were built in layers. First we built a jig (see photo 1 – top left) and then custom cut the pieces for the main frame (see photo 2 – top middle). We then put the pieces in the jig (see photo 3 – top left) and installed the second layer and glued and clamped everything together (we used about 40 clamps) and allowed several days for the glue to dry (see photo 4 -2nd left). We then did the third layer (see photo 5 – 2nd middle). We hung the first door without the panels and glass (see photo 6 – 2nd right). The finished door was hung with the panel and glass installed (photo 7 – 3rd row). We hope to finish, hang and paint the second door in 2018.

The volunteers for 2017 were Philip Beard, Franz Gerencir, Gerry Herrmann, Bob Pitcher and Stan Madyda. Total volunteer time for 2017 was 548 hours.

To continue this restoration, The DRM would appreciate donations mailed to the Museum and a notation made on the check that it is for the restoration of this historic caboose. Send tax deductible contributions to:
